Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 5, 6, 8-10 and 12-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kometani et al (5,720,790).

Kometani et al teach a filter element (100) comprising a filter media (110) having filter face portions and at least one side portion joined thereto by a corner portion, a seal (220) of substantially solid resilient thermoplastic material having a bendable contact portion (see 233 in Fig. 26) and homogeneously formed unitarily with the solid resilient material, and the seal being formed directly integrally on the filter media (see Abstract, Figs. 7-10, 18-20, 23-29, col. 3, line 53 through col. 4, line 13, col. 4, lines 25-38 and lines 46-54, col. 8, lines 1-9).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 2, 4, 7, 11 and 19-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kometani et al (5,720,790), in view of Peng (6,864,195 B2).

Claims 2, 4, 7, 11 and 19-25 call for the seal formed of thermoplastic material which is a thermoplastic elastomers (TPE). Peng discloses a seal material being made of TPE or thermoplastic elastomers (col. 3, lines 14-33) made of particles embedded in ethylene-propylene terpolymer, wherein these materials have found utility in many applications which previously used vulcanized rubber, e.g. hose, gaskets, and the like (col. 4, lines 19-32). Peng further discloses TPO is well-known to be useful in producing gaskets or seals through conventional extrusion, calendaring or injection molding processes. It is inherently understood that TPO is used in the production of filter element with sealing means via injection molding process (see col. 3, lines 14-33). It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide thermoplastic elastomers as taught by Peng in the seal of Kometani et al since it is well-known in the art that TPE produces finished articles having resilient rubber-like properties without the need for vulcanizing cure of the finished articles (col. 3, lines 26-28).

Double Patenting

Claims 1, 3, 5, 6, 8-10 and 12-18 of this application conflict with claims 1, 4, 5, 7-9 and 11-16 of Application No. 10/404,109. 37 CFR 1.78(b) provides that when two or more applications filed by the same applicant contain conflicting claims, elimination of such claims from all but one application may be required in the absence of good and sufficient reason for their retention during pendency in more than one application. Applicant is required to either cancel the conflicting claims from all but one application or maintain a clear line of demarcation between the applications. See MPEP § 822.
